The term exclusion fencing does not necessarily mean that livestock have to be totally restricted from a waterway. Using the riparian zone as part of a rotational grazing system is accepted. Having livestock accessing a waterway in controlled conditions has very little impact. Ask Kelsey Conservation District for more information about rotational grazing and controlled water access.

Draw map indicating where the fence will be placed (aerial photos of your property are available from Kelsey Conservation District).

Please read all conditions and responsibilities listed on the reverse side of this application.
